hello again: Despite attending the same junior high in Texas, it took a twist of fate to bring this pair together later in life. Romona recalls, “I remember Jerrold as this cute, funny, well-dressed guy with a gregarious personality.” Once they moved on to different high schools, she was sure she’d never see him again. reunited: Thanks to dating in the modern age, Jerrold and Romona were reintroduced online after 28 years. Sparks were immediately flying between the two, who had relocated to Arizona at different times. so brilliant: Their modern-chic wedding at the Hotel Palomar featured romantic shades of lavender and violet, spectacular floral and luxe furnishings. Shimmering chandeliers, sequin linens, and menus embellished with rhinestones gave the ballroom an elegant sparkle, perhaps rivaled only by the newlyweds’ smiles. worth the wait: “Jerrold and I are best friends and partners for life,” says the bride, “We are just meant to be.”
